

ENTIZE

Entize Planning

Production planning for the food industry

Who are we

The idea that became Entize origins from a collaboration between researchers and students at Chalmers University of Technology and started as a project to discover how small and medium sized food manufacturers could become more competitive. With knowledge and experience gathered from over 50 interviews within the industry we founded Entize AB and with backing from one of Sweden's leading business developer we developed Entize Planning - a production planning tool for the food industry.

Our Philosophy

At Entize, we believe that production planning is a cornerstone of every manufacturing company. That is why we want to make planning as simple as possible with software that is quick and easy to implement, learn and maintain.

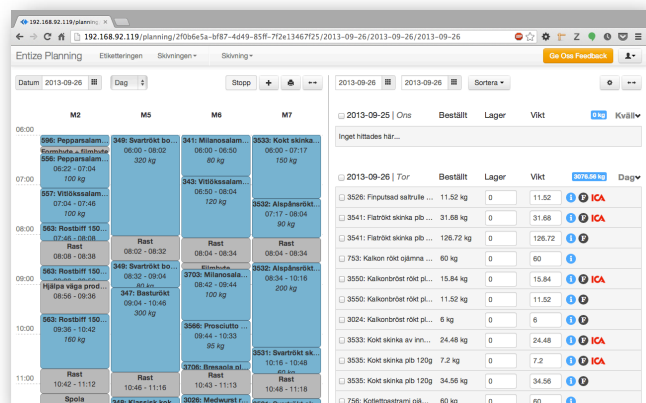

What we do

By gathering vital information for the planning in one place and providing the user with an easy drag and drop interface, Entize Planning aids you in the planning process and helps generate understandable visualizations of your company's production plan accessible to all relevant personnel.

Using Entize Planning does not only help your company keep track of what to produce when, but also allows you to better understand how raw materials and products flow through the organization, thereby generating a decision basis for more accurate assessments of material requirements.

How we do it

We have developed Entize Planning as a completely web-based and cross-platform solution to ensure availability and accessibility to all our customers - when and how they choose. This eases information distribution within the company as everyone can access new information instantly. Entize Planning integrates seamlessly with your existing ERP system and retrieves relevant information continuously.

We also realize that manufacturing firms are dynamic and things tend to change. New machines or products can enter the production system and we don't want our customers to be dependent on us every time this happens. That is why we have built in a learning function that helps our customers easily keep the software up to date at all times.

How we charge

We believe that Entize Planning should be accessible to as many users as needed to maximize the value created for our customers. This is why we provide the software on a per company license basis and leave it up to you as our customer to distribute user privileges as you please, allowing the tool to grow together with your organization without increasing cost. And just one last thing, production never sleeps, neither should your planning software. That's why we have support around the clock.